INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL SCIENCE JOURNAL

Vol. XXXIX, 1987
Nos. 111–114

SUBJECT AND AUTHOR INDEX

Subjects

Bantustans, races, classes and ethnic groups in South Africa 85–96
Brazil, politics and social sciences: 1964–85 135–142
Canada, the social sciences 127–134
Capitalist economies, inflation and distributional struggles: a theoretical framework with applications 301–321
Central America, history of ethnic classification: 1700–1950 61–84
Chancay valley, land and people in Peru from the 16th to the 20th century 505–522
China, development strategy from the perspective of the causes of poverty 401–414
Chinese and Western models of philosophy, a comparison 263–271
Colonial capitalism and theories of subsumption: Sumatran transitions 543–562
Convergence theory, sunbelt versus frostbelt? 199–214
Debt
  public, as seen by the classical economists 97–108
  United States public and private: 1791 to 2000 577–591
Debt crisis, the impact of an exogenous event: the oil shocks, the private banks 323–335
Development strategy in China, from the perspective of the causes of poverty 401–414
Economic
  analysis, exogenous factors 293–300
  crisis, and regional economic development 187–197
Economics, story-telling and formalism: the instance of famine 387–400
Economic structure, daily life, and technical change 337–352
Economists, where they teach 425–433
Economy
  status-oriented: market socialism in Hungary 365–376
  management processes 377–385
Ejido, the transformation of the forms of social organization of production in Mexico (1924–81) 523–542
Encyclopedia, conceptual, for the social sciences 109–125
Ethnic
  and racial prejudice, anthropology and ethnology 31–43
  classification in Central America: 1700–1950 61–84
  groups, races, classes and Bantustans in South Africa 85–96 nationalism: social science paradigms 3–18
Ethnicity and the welfare state 19–30
Europe and North America, the classification of races: 1700–1850 45–60

INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL SCIENCE JOURNAL

Vol. XXXIX, 1987
Nos. 111–114

SUBJECT AND AUTHOR INDEX

Subjects

Bantustans, races, classes and ethnic groups in South Africa 85–96
Brazil, politics and social sciences: 1964–85 135–142
Canada, the social sciences 127–134
Capitalist economies, inflation and distributional struggles: a theoretical framework with applications 301–321
Central America, history of ethnic classification: 1700–1950 61–84
Chancay valley, land and people in Peru from the 16th to the 20th century 505–522
China, development strategy from the perspective of the causes of poverty 401–414
Chinese and Western models of philosophy, a comparison 263–271
Colonial capitalism and theories of subsumption: Sumatran transitions 543–562
Convergence theory, sunbelt versus frostbelt? 199–214
Debt
  public, as seen by the classical economists 97–108
  United States public and private: 1791 to 2000 577–591
Debt crisis, the impact of an exogenous event: the oil shocks, the private banks 323–335
Development strategy in China, from the perspective of the causes of poverty 401–414
Economic
  analysis, exogenous factors 293–300
  crisis, and regional economic development 187–197
Economics, story-telling and formalism: the instance of famine 387–400
Economic structure, daily life, and technical change 337–352
Economists, where they teach 425–433
Economy
  status-oriented: market socialism in Hungary 365–376
  management processes 377–385
Ejido, the transformation of the forms of social organization of production in Mexico (1924–81) 523–542
Encyclopedia, conceptual, for the social sciences 109–125
Ethnic
  and racial prejudice, anthropology and ethnology 31–43
  classification in Central America: 1700–1950 61–84
  groups, races, classes and Bantustans in South Africa 85–96
  nationalism: social science paradigms 3–18
Ethnicity and the welfare state 19–30
Europe and North America, the classification of races: 1700–1850 45–60

Famine, story-telling and formalism in economics 387–400
French regional policy in the early 1980s 233–254
Galicia, peasant transition, continuity and change 481–504
Hungary
regional development policy 255–262 status-oriented economy: market socialism 365–376
Indigenous concepts, a problem for social and information science 607–617
Inflation and distributional struggles in capitalist economies: a theoretical framework with applications 301–321
Information science, social science, indigenous concepts 607–617
Ireland, the social sciences 273–281
Isard, Walter: an interview – regional science, retrospect and prospect 153–158
Management processes in a planned economy 377–385
Mexico, the transformation of the forms of social organization of production in an ejido, (1924–81) 523–542
North America and Europe, classification of races: 1700–1850 45–60
Peasant transition, continuity and change in a Galician parish 481–504
Peru, land and people: the Chancay valley from the 16th to the 20th century 505–522
Philosophy, a comparison between the Chinese and Western models 263–271
Politics and social sciences in Brazil: 1964–85 135–142
Poverty, and China's development strategy 401–414
Pyrenees, French Catalan, scenarios of transition 459–480
Races, classification in Europe and North America: 1700–1850 45–60
Racial prejudice, anthropology and ethnology 31–43
Region, as a geographical, economic and cultural concept 159–172 Regional development, high technology and industry: a theoretical critique and reconstruction 215–232 development policy in Hungary 255–262 economic development and the world economic crisis 187–197 policies: experiences and prospects 173–186 policy, French, in the early 1980s 233–254 science: retrospect and prospect. An interview with Walter Isard 153–158 Self-management, workers', the socio-economics of 353–364
Socialism, market in Hungary, the status-oriented economy 365–376
Social organization of production in a Mexican ejido (1924–81): transformation 523–542
Social science expansion and increasing diversification of its universe 595–606 in Ireland 273–281
paradigms: ethnic nationalism 3–18 and information science: the problem of indigenous concepts 607–617 Social sciences
a conceptual encyclopedia 109–125 and politics in Brazil: 1964–85 135–142 in Canada 127–134
universality and diversity 593–594
Socio-economics of workers' self-management 353–364
Sociology of the arts, a revival 563–576
South Africa, races, classes, ethnic groups and Bantustans 85–96
Sumatran transitions: colonial capitalism and theories of subsumption 543–562

Technical change, daily life and economic structure 337–352 Transition
in the French Catalan Pyrenees 459–480 processes, an analysis 447–458
US public and private debt: 1791 to 2000 577–591
Welfare state and ethnicity 19–30
Western and Chinese models of philosophy: a comparison 263–271
Work, the image of, documentary photography and the production of 'reality' 415–424
Workers' self-management, the socio-economics of 353–364

Authors

ASSIER-ANDRIEU, Louis. Scenarios of transition in the French Catalan Pyrenees 459–480
BANTON, Michael. The classification of races in Europe and North America: 1700–1850 45–60
BENKO, G. B. French regional policy in the early 1980s 233–254
BJÖRKLUND, Ulf. Ethnicity and the welfare state 19–30
BLAIN, Robert A. United States public and private debt: 1791 to 2000 577–591
BLYTON, Paul. The image of work: documentary photography and the production of 'reality' 415–424
BROMLEY, Yu. V. Anthropology, ethnology and ethnic and racial prejudice 31–43
BRUCE, Erika, v.C., and FOX, Alan F. The social sciences in Canada 127–134
BURNS, Tom R., DE VILLÉ, Philippe, and FLAM, Helena. Inflation and distributional struggles in capitalist economies: a theoretical framework with applications 301–321
CELESTINO, Olinda. Land and people in Peru: the Chancay valley from the 16th to the 20th century 505–522
CLAVAL, Paul. The region as a geographical, economic and cultural concept 159–172
DESAI, Meghnad. Story-telling and formalism in economics: the instance of famine 387–400
DE VILLÉ, Philippe, BURNS, Tom R., and FLAM, Helena. Inflation and distributional struggles in capitalist economies: a theoretical framework with applications 301–321
ENYEDI, György. Regional development policy in Hungary 255–262
FLAM, Helena, BURNS, Tom R., and DE VILLÉ, Philippe. Inflation and distributional struggles in capitalist economies: a theoretical framework with applications 301–321
FOX, Alan, F. and BRUCE, Erika v.C. The social sciences in Canada 127–134
GAREAU, Frederick H. Expansion and increasing diversification of the universe of social science 595–606 GERSHUNY, Jonathan. Daily life, economic structure and technical change 337–352
GODELIER, Maurice. Introduction: the analysis of transition processes 447–458
GONZÁLEZ, Vinicio. The history of ethnic classification in Central America: 1700–1950 61–84
HAMM, Bernd, and LITSCH, Martin. Sunbelt versus frostbelt: a case for convergence theory? 199–214

HIMMELSTRAND, Ulf. Introduction: exogenous factors in economic analysis 293–300
HIMMELSTRAND, Ulf, and HORVAT, Branko. The socio-economics of workers' self-management 353–364 HORVAT, Branko, and HIMMELSTRAND, Ulf. The socio-economics of workers' self-management 353–364 ITURRA, Raúl. Continuity and change: peasant transition in a Galician parish 481–504
JACKSON, John A. Social science in Ireland 273–281
JINGSHAN, Liu. A comparison between the Chinese and Western models of philosophy 263–271
KÖBLI, József. The status-oriented economy: market socialism in Hungary 365–376
KUKLÍNSKI, Antoni. Regional policies: experiences and prospects 173–186
LABBENS, Jean. The public debt as seen by the classical economists 97–108
LITSCH, Martin, and HAMM, Bernd. Sunbelt versus frostbelt: a case for convergence theory? 199–214
MUMA, Patrick A. ISSC Stein Rokkan Prize announcement 434
MUMA, Patrick A. Where economists teach 425–433
MUMMERT, Gail. The transformation of the forms of social organization of production in a Mexican ejido (1924–81) 523–542
OLIVEIRA, Francisco de. Politics and social sciences in Brazil: 1964–85 135–142
PETRAKOV, Nikolai. Management processes in a planned economy 377–385
RICHMOND, Anthony H. Ethnic nationalism: social science paradigms 3–18
RIGGS, Fred W. A conceptual encyclopedia for the social sciences 109–125
RIGGS, Fred W. Indigenous concepts: a problem for social and information science 607–617
SCOTT, Allen, J., and STORPER, Michael. High technology industry and regional development: a theoretical critique and reconstruction 215–232
SILBERMANN, Alphons. On the revival of a sociology of the arts 563–576
STÖHR, Walter B. Regional economic development and the world economic crisis 187–197
STOLER, Ann. Sumatran transitions: colonial capitalism and theories of subsumption 543–562
STORPER, Michael, and SCOTT, Allen, J. High technology industry and regional development: a theoretical critique and reconstruction 215–232 SWEDBURG, Richard. The impact of an exogenous event: the oil shocks, the private banks and the origin of the debt crisis 323–335
XIHU, Ruan. Races, classes, ethnic groups and Bantustans in South Africa 85–96
YANLING, He. China's development strategy from the perspective of the causes of poverty 401–414